

Sierra-Cedar’s Strategic Services practice offers recognized management consulting services for human capital, financial, supply chain, and business intelligence. Our services assist your organization in making the best selection and use of its technology solutions to improve business processes and service delivery while lowering the cost of these services. Our team of Senior Principals first worked out in the industry to understand the nuances, challenges, and practices that work; then they moved into consulting where they honed their skills and increased their knowledge and research leading practices to provide you with valued recommendations.

Objective

We provide the full suite of Management Consulting services that are arranged in to three core areas: Intelligence, Strategy, and Justification. Our objective is to provide prized results to our clients. These results include actionable information to improve processes, technology, and staffing; guidance for business cases and change management; or seasoned advice on a solutions selection.

Results

We began our services by listening to you and asking questions to understand your vision, objectives, issues, and restrictions. Once we confirm understanding, then we tailor a work plan that best meets your needs and produce results to address your objectives. Our senior consulting staff partner will meet with your team to deliver results that fulfill your requirements, transfer knowledge, and help to further develop your staff. Our aim is to provide results that assist you with deploying more effective systems and a more engaged team.
